STILL CRAZY FOR EMIL? OH WELL!

Given the bitterness of this Great Year of Plague and Emil's continued interment, lock down on the Island of Penang – which means that we have spent a large part of the past month wading through 100 variations or abstractions of Emil's room confinement and deluged by endless telexes from the Emil pleading poverty and seeking a WWWG bailout...

Instead we sent Emil several of his backup portable drives by DHL and asked him to piece together from that a new edition of interest...

This is it!

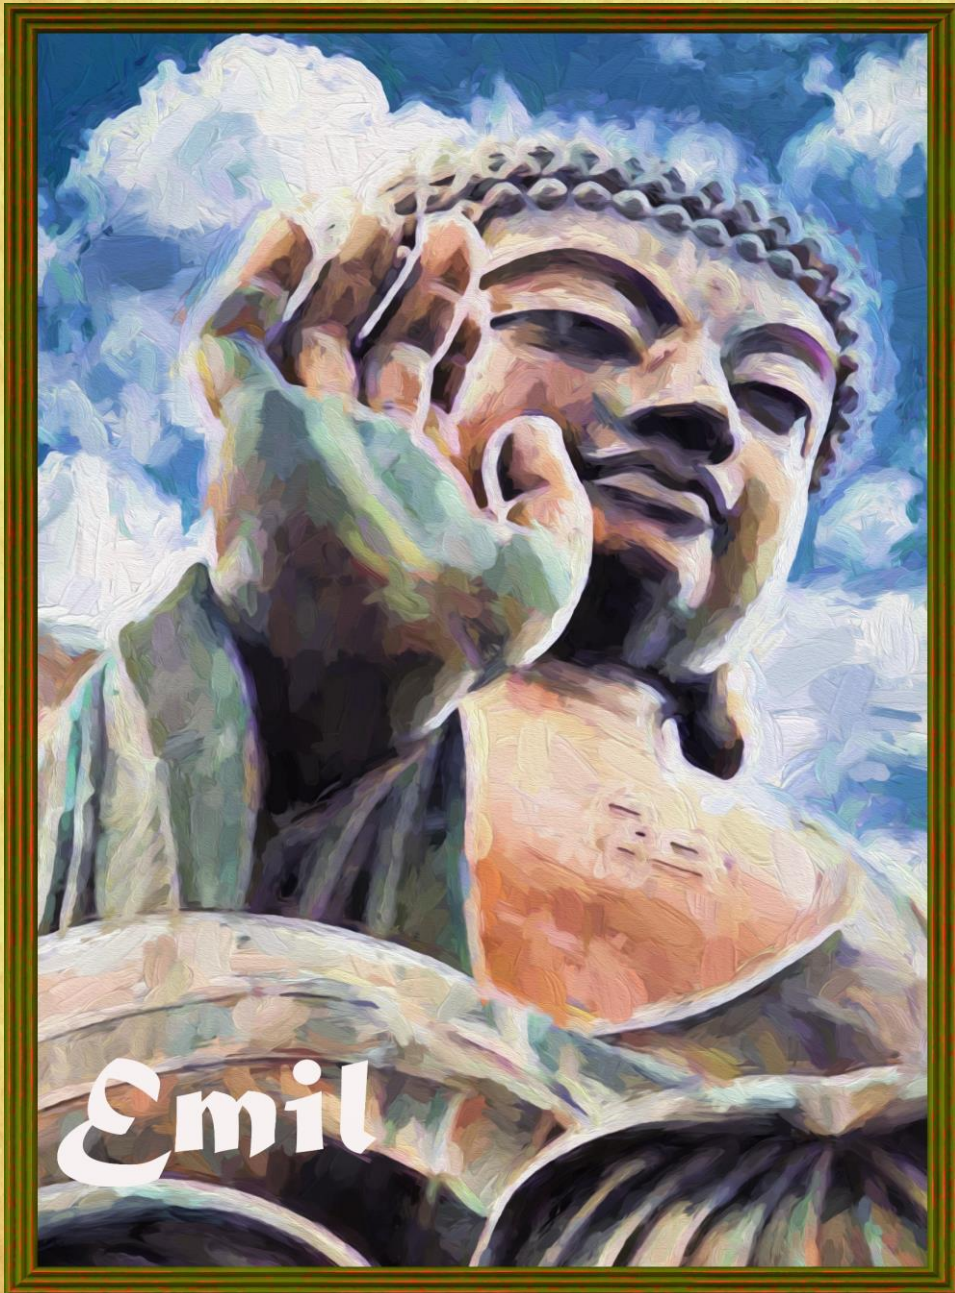

I am beyond shocked and somewhat amazed by this topic as this was part of the unfinished assignment that we commissioned, that we sent him to Hong Kong to do – right before his “Detention” by the HK Thought Police.
Hope you all will enjoy this blast from the past!

THIS IS A THOUGH ONE!

In yet another shameful example of how one is forced to degrade their soul as a true-to-life starving artist and a mindless Rube who has spent way too many years staring at the wrong end of the money stick and thus, subjecting one's own self (like myself) to the pitiful plight of WWWG's consistent, their insistence that I toil for below slave wages while adventuring on another leg of my famed Hobo Tour... A while back, Seine thought that it would be fun to send me off to Hong Kong and to create a new edition about this most famous wonder of the world.

Sadly, I agreed and was off to my first visit to Hong Kong since I was there in it's colonial days. Nothing seemed out of place...seemed that not much had changed other than the flag and the grim faces of a whole cadre of grumpy immigration folks who for the most part seemed to be the famed grandchildren of the evil and most foul of 1960's Red Guard Terrorists. These misguided youths had been raised on an endless sea of the Cultural Revolution's horror stories, mixed with outrageous CCP lies that their grand parents imparted to them in all of those years of fireside stories.

For the first several days, everything went swimmingly and I spent much of the time out-and-bout the temple grounds...

On the third day while discussing with the hotel staff over the missing TV set, the empty min-bar in my room and as to who was gonna pay for these claimed damages; I was wrestled to the floor by two rather large thugs.

At first I was confused and my first thought(s) were that they might be some kind of rent-a-cops trying to put the squeeze on me for the so-called room damage; I was ready and prepared to respond until they put a hood over my head and ushered me out to a waiting car/van...

Couldn't really tell which as I was blindfolded. Seems that I was abducted by what turned out to not be the militia arm of the Hotel Association but in fact, they were the Hong Kong's most feared Thought Police – a large group, the para-military arm of the local CCP Tourist Board who seem to be (collectively) a sad and humorless

Seems my sin(s) revolved around the fact that they took insult in an observation from my blog about the utter rudeness and the out-of-control unruliness of Chinese “Zero Baht” Tourists in Bangkok but which I had the misfortune to post from Hong Kong.

Seine (just got yet another telex from WWWG) is pleading with me to put this soapbox to rest as he has just finished reading my first draft.

That was such a low blow and at this point, I had no logical choice...So, I caved immediately...while rapidly agreeing to put this topic to bed and edit this opening to a more agreeable standard.

I was lucky in that I had just posted the raw fotos off to Seine in the form of a portable hard drive just the very evening before all the nonsense started and I hope understandably to you all that this is really the first time that I have looked at them.

DAY ONE: BEST INTENTIONS ARE THE DEVIL'S SPIN!

Sargent Friday looked the guy in the eye, he didn't blink...there wasn't the slightest hint of a studder in his monotone mannerisms...he didn't mumble as he just said "Just the facts!"

I know but, for some reason Hong Kong People love to revisit the past and "Dragnet" is just about old as you can get TV-wise and besides campers, this is what was playing in the background as I started to assemble today's photography equipment.

I was stuck by the need to return to the trusted, the old normal(s) that defined and seemed to give a greater purpose to the universe on the grand scale; this random new-age analyst danced through the back reaches of my brain's depleted gray matter as I really considered chucking the new Nikon D300 with all of it masterful witchery and reached deep into my bag seeking the old, the trust Nikon F4s that had been my steadfast sidekick for what seemed to be a lost generation.

In the end, the D300 won out as WWWG had failed to considered the massive cost of analog film and processing in their less than generous daily allowance. So out with the old...it is always NOT due to the fact that the D300 was a modern, better camera but campers; it always comes down to cost...more bang for the buck and in the end, quality or even loyal service(s) are waved off by the bottom-line.

Somehow, this made me sad!

“Just the facts!”

Yes Sir, Mister Friday!

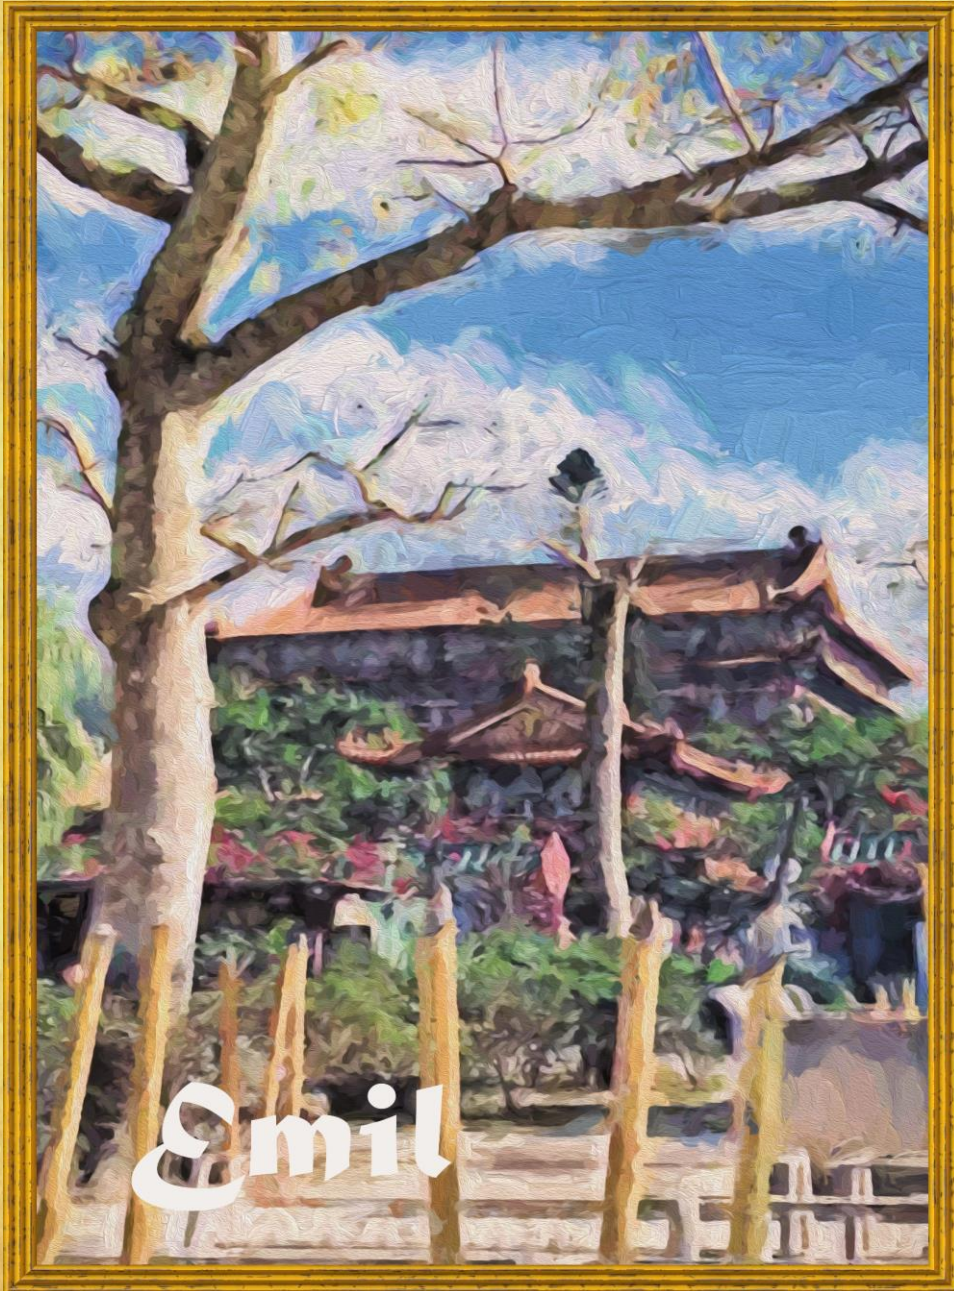

We were all much more mannered, respectful and knowing of where our place was – where we fit into the bigger picture of our society and experienced to understand that we must “sing that song to get along!”

Yes, indeed we were far more WOKE than even the greatest of this new generation's self-proclaimed, the mighty WOKE PC Warriors of Twitter Fame.

Not saying that most of them would take a moment to or just maybe, they are not able to totally grasp the deeper, inner truths in my last argument?

I don't blame them as they have had less of a classical education that we had been subjected to at their age and since, ours was lacking...it is little wonder that they don't get it...stranded and lost out on a distant Twitter account screeching about how I am evil incarnate, the true step-son of Satan...

Sorry, at least I got that soapbox out of my system and returned the F4s back into its cradle in my larger computer bag.

Camera bags are a pain and I have a closet full of them to prove that very point...they are either too large and they make it look like you are a mobile TV Station as you wade through crowded subway trains with 50 pounds of camera gear or are so small that you have to abandon most of the lens that you will sorely miss once you get out to the shot...

“Just the facts...Please Mister Emil!”

OK...don't get an attitude!

Where I am headed is Lantau...which the travel guide tells us that it has (really) twice the land as Hong Kong proper...

Feel educated?

Well listen up as the old lady at the hotel front counter told me that Lantau means “broken head” in the Cantonese language.

Who said that you never learn anything here?

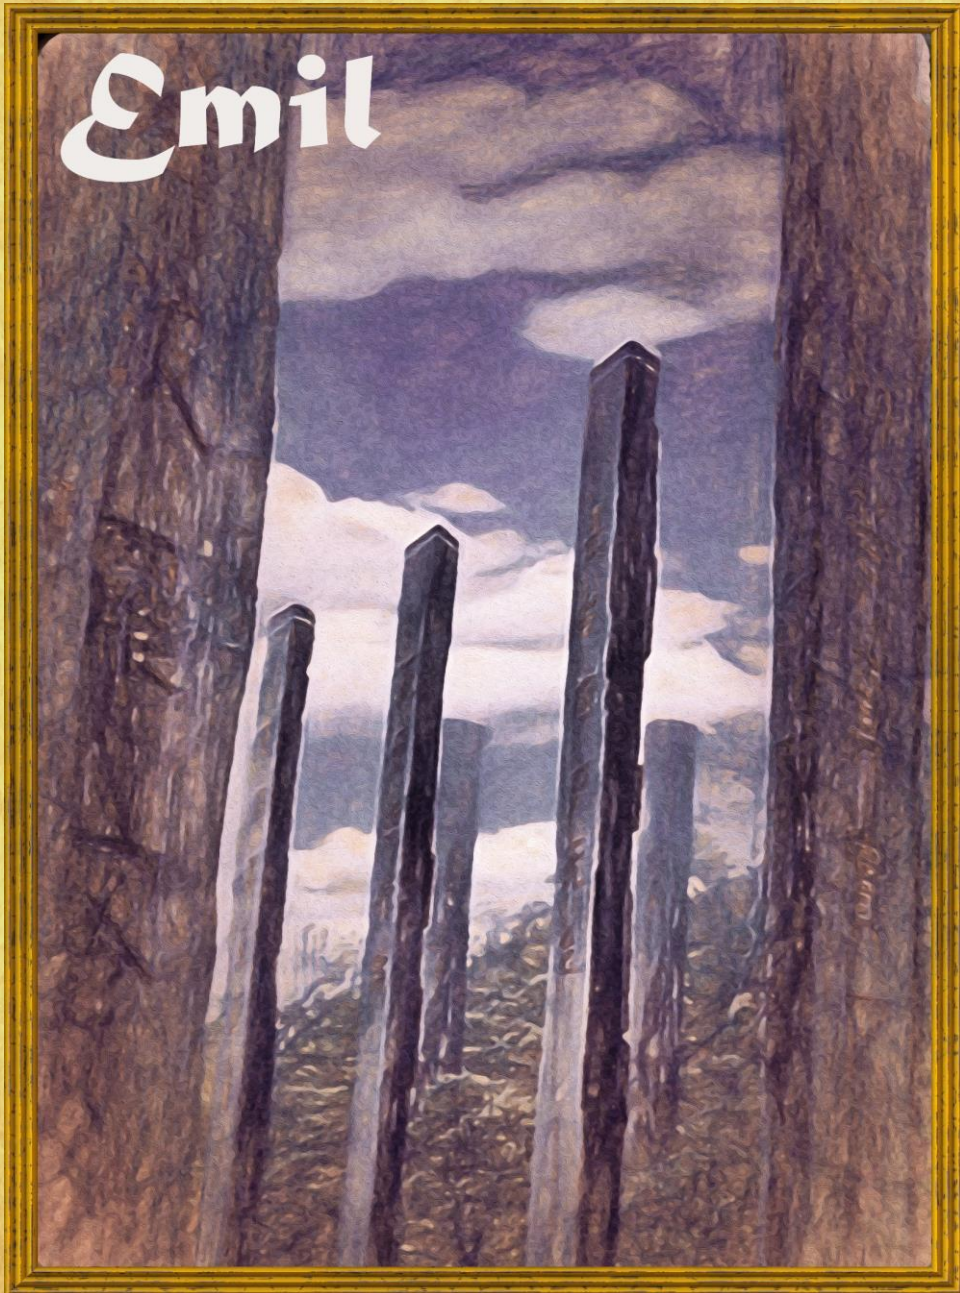

Why am I headed for Lantau?

There are no big shopping malls or air-conditioned gaming retreats – not even a casino but, I am sure that I might find a friendly card game or two as the Hong Kongers have a deep tradition of gambling and risk...

DAY ONE: BEST INTENTIONS ARE THE DEVIL'S SPIN!

Po Lin Monastery seemed to be the only reason that I'm going. It is not an ancient place, in fact, they only started building out here in the early 1920's.

I have been told (or did I read it in the brochure...they have a brochure! More on this aspect a little latter...) the original was kind of simple with only a shrine dedicated to Buddha and that it was maintained by a monk cadre that numbered a grand total of only three monks – well, in the 1920's this was way out of town and was as far off the main Hong Kong Business District as one could get and still officially be in the Colony Protective proper.

While I do appreciate old monasteries and am deeply involved in my own efforts to document them before they disappear to the encroaching bulldozers and to high-rise apartment blocks; my real reason for coming up from Singapore was for the statue...

Siene sent me a video of the Statue Complex called Tian Tan and which seemed to be shot (I think) by a drone – which I believe to be illegal for private citizens to operate in Hong Kong and it is very huge and impressive...

Don't let me get off point here!

This massive Buddha on an isolated, lonely hilltop was surprising and I wondered why I had never gone out to have a look see, in any previous trip to Hong Kong? After a quick Internet search and filtering out all the extensive commercial, standard tour guide hype and pre-paid tour offers rubbish; I got to the facts... mind you, just the facts...I think?

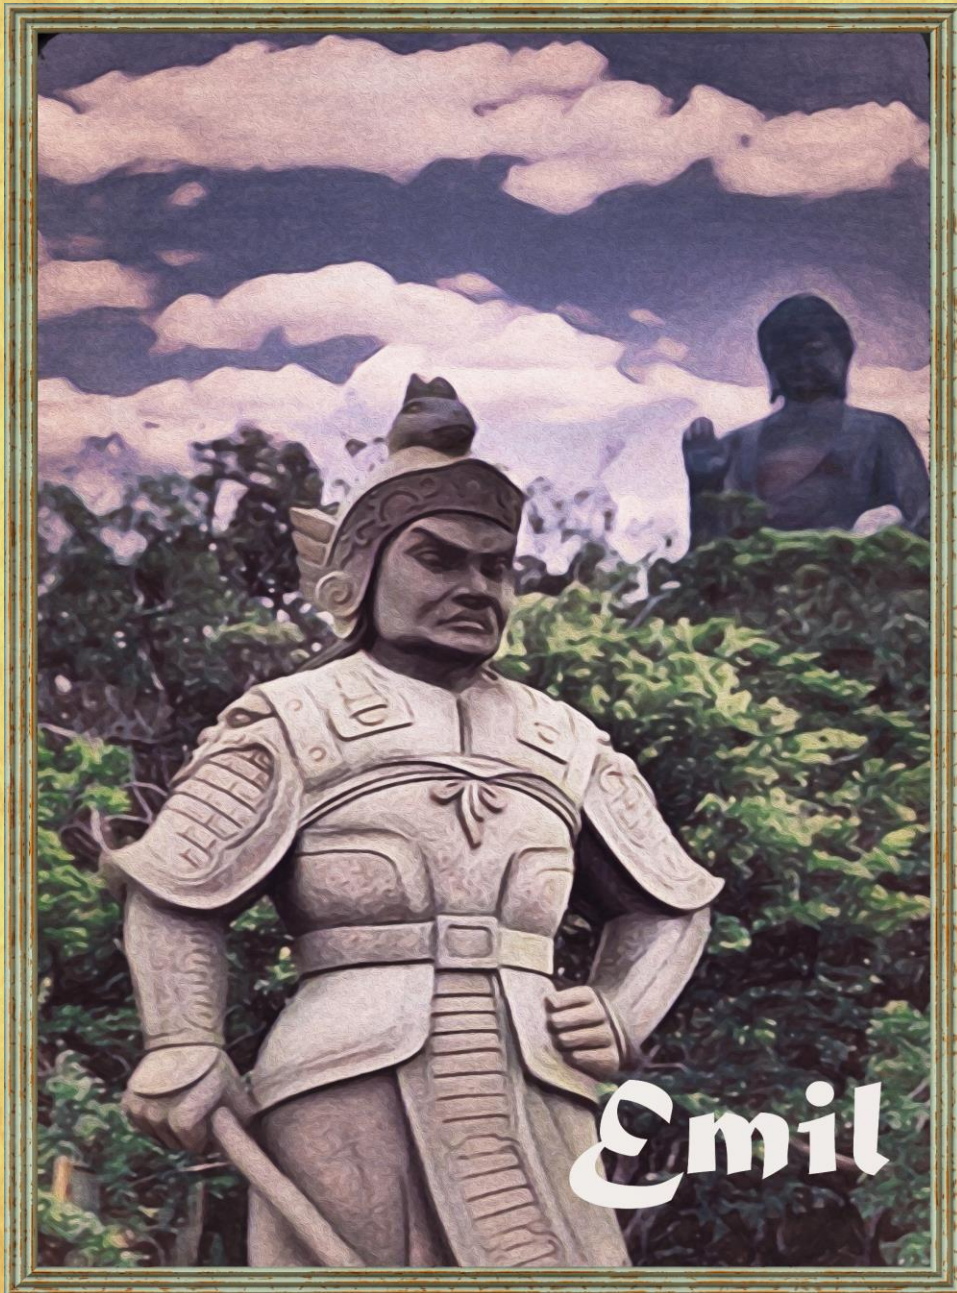

“Tian Tan Buddha is the tallest outdoor seated bronze Buddha in the world. It took nearly 10 years to build this bronze Buddha statue.”

Now what the tourist hype downplayed or completely omitted was the fact that this is not ancient...it NOT even that old as I saw that they started building it in the 1970's (well to many of you that is ancient...I guess?)

"Again...way all the way from Singapore...then???"

Let me clue you guys in on the inner thinking of a poor, starving artist and main mantra of the Hobo tour...OK?

Rule Rumbero One: "Never turn down a FREE meal or in this case a FREE trip even if they want to send you on the ultra cheap package tour..."

See, even a cheapo trip is still a trip and even with its numerous distractions and faults is that is it still far superior to NO trip...and being that it is on someone else's dime makes it more critical

(as my Jesuit Guru once impressed upon me) is that "One must NEVER question even a mere breadcrumb from God or his designated agents on this earth!"

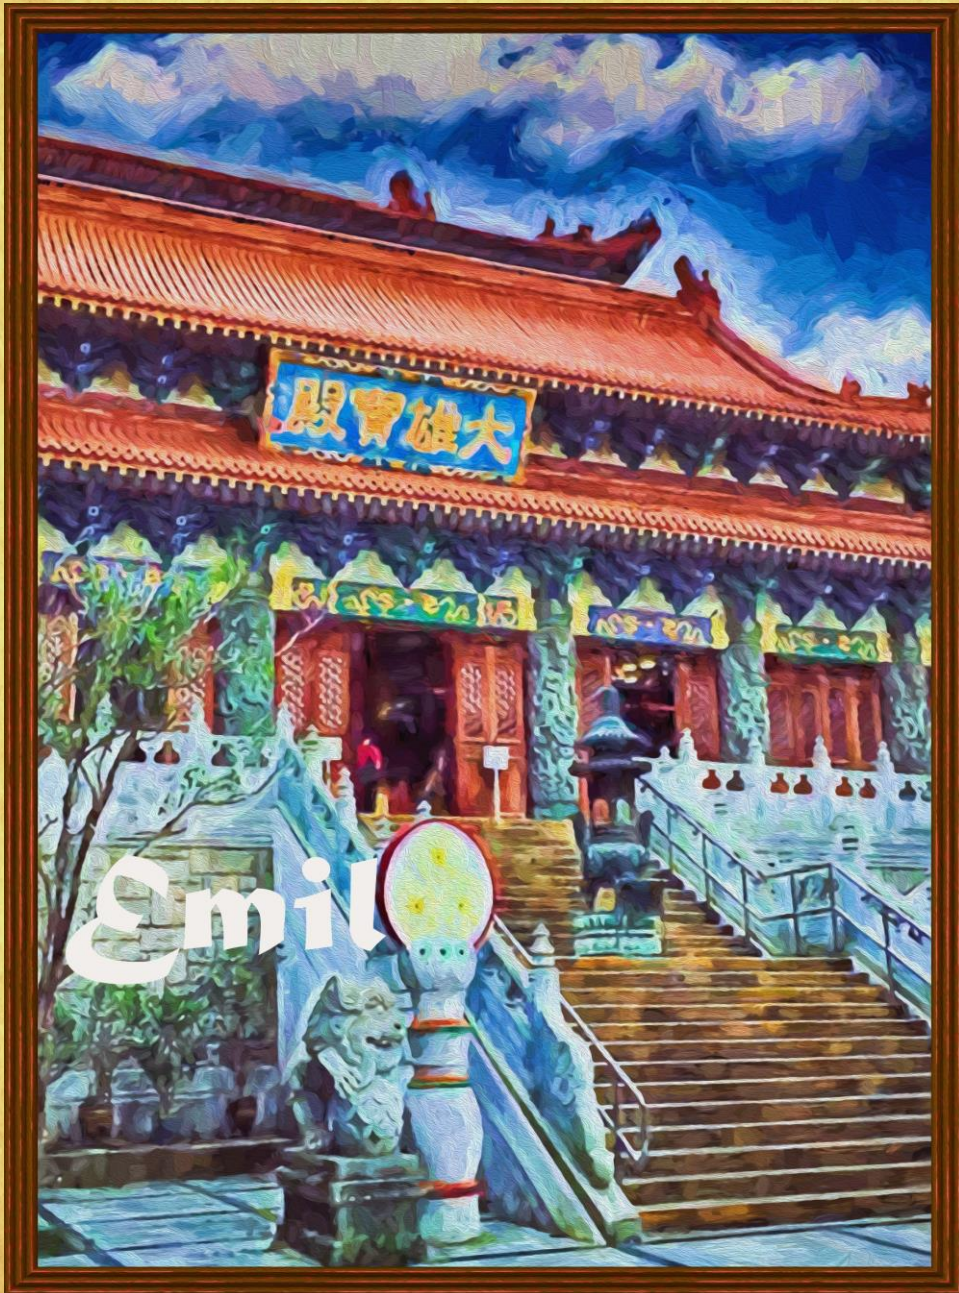

Never question FREE at least not until you are safely back and their retainer is secreted away into your hidden account.

So, kiddies! Here was the plan and at that very moment it all seemed to work for me in that I would bum around this Great plan???

Well campers!

It did almost work!

INDEED!

I should have better vetted and carded all of dubious, all of those so-called agents of God...

Regardless of all that I said...instruct you in...

FREE is not always FREE nor is it without fault or any numerous numbers of defects and seepage...

But, I am getting ahead of myself or even the need for "the rest of the story"... Sorry Paul Harvey!

So with that, I have said (at this point) all that I am gonna say about all of this..

Dateline: Hong Kong – Day Two.

The world has been slightly crazy for as long as I can ever remember...no questioning on that basic fact but, its collective mental state has blown way past even the late 1930's or even 1914 and is spiraling down at an exacerbated unparallel rate of like total batshit crazy.

You know if I am truthful; unless you are a headline reader on Yahoo News or any of the corporate news networks – which truly holds very little news of any note other than the newest, the greatest Fake News (usually against the orange demon: The Donald) that can be traced back to the Huffington Post (whose owner was romantically rejected by the Donald way back in the day and has yet, been able to let it go) or someone wanting to sell me gold, silver or herbal hormone creams...

coffee while watching the morning news and this hotel seems to only have CNN and some bootleg Netflix programming which just adds to my disappointment. Add to this the staggering fact that yesterday was such a total bust out at the Tian Tan Amusement Park...where nothing worked out as planned maybe due to the mass sea of packaged tour crowds and what must have been near a million tourists stumbling around and about. Then add to that; there is not that much to really see and in my case get some fotos other than the endless gift shops, watch the utter and so clear...the massive amount(s) of outright corruption, the open fraud that parades out in the open for all to see and monks wearing gold Rolex watches, driving or being driven to/from the Tian Tan Amusement Park in rather fancy (no cloth seat covers or cheap hubcaps here) the dearth of thousands of their non-drinking cousins (behind you) bitterly complaining about the extended wait amongst many other complaints; you too would share my sadness by the Disneyfication of cultural and historical sites – even the likes of Tian Tan.

Let me double down a bit...

“Why???”

Because I am the one here at the keyboard and it is a very important concept...there is a deeper undercurrent here that you will never read in Yahoo News or see the talking heads on CNN as it doesn't revolve around or can they find an angle in which they can declare The Donald is at fault (maybe if there was a Trump Hotel here at Tian Tan I could buy into the tin foil conspiracies).

Having taken the Hobo tour around and about in much a wide variation of 3rd, 4th and the 5th world nations in the past number of years, having visited many famous sites both cultural and historic value (as they are heavy promoted in all the guide books); I have come to some (I think) rather startling conclusions about a once novel, a most capitalist notion on how to raise much needed monies to funds the maintenance and pay for vast serial improvement of threadbare temples and historic sites around the world and my final conclusion is focused around a simple, primary point that anything with “World Heritage” verbiage in its official title or even having its logo in their four-color, pricy brochures (why does even a simple temple in the vast backroads here in Asia have a brochure and I wonder if anyone ever asks whose cousin got that contract???) are actually being controlled by a cadre of crooked money changers and should openingly be declared as what they really are... they need to be declared officially, “Dens of Thieves.”

“Whatz???”

Recently while on extended assignment in Kyoto, I was almost overcome by the spirit to do what Jesus had once did...clean the temple of its crooks, money changers and other seemingly corrupt cadre of corrupt management gangsters and their extensive, running dog staff that mismanage each of these sites on the bases that “the more of the FREELY donated and intended funds that we use to rebuild these sites back to their former glory; the less we can steal away...”

That is my core complaint...I don't normally have an intentional problem(s) with either gangsters, money changers and I accept that corruption is a normal part of everyone's life regardless of what your zip code is...but seriously...when you steal everything to the point that you are (by your actions) destroying the very thing that you are paid to defend; it becomes too much!

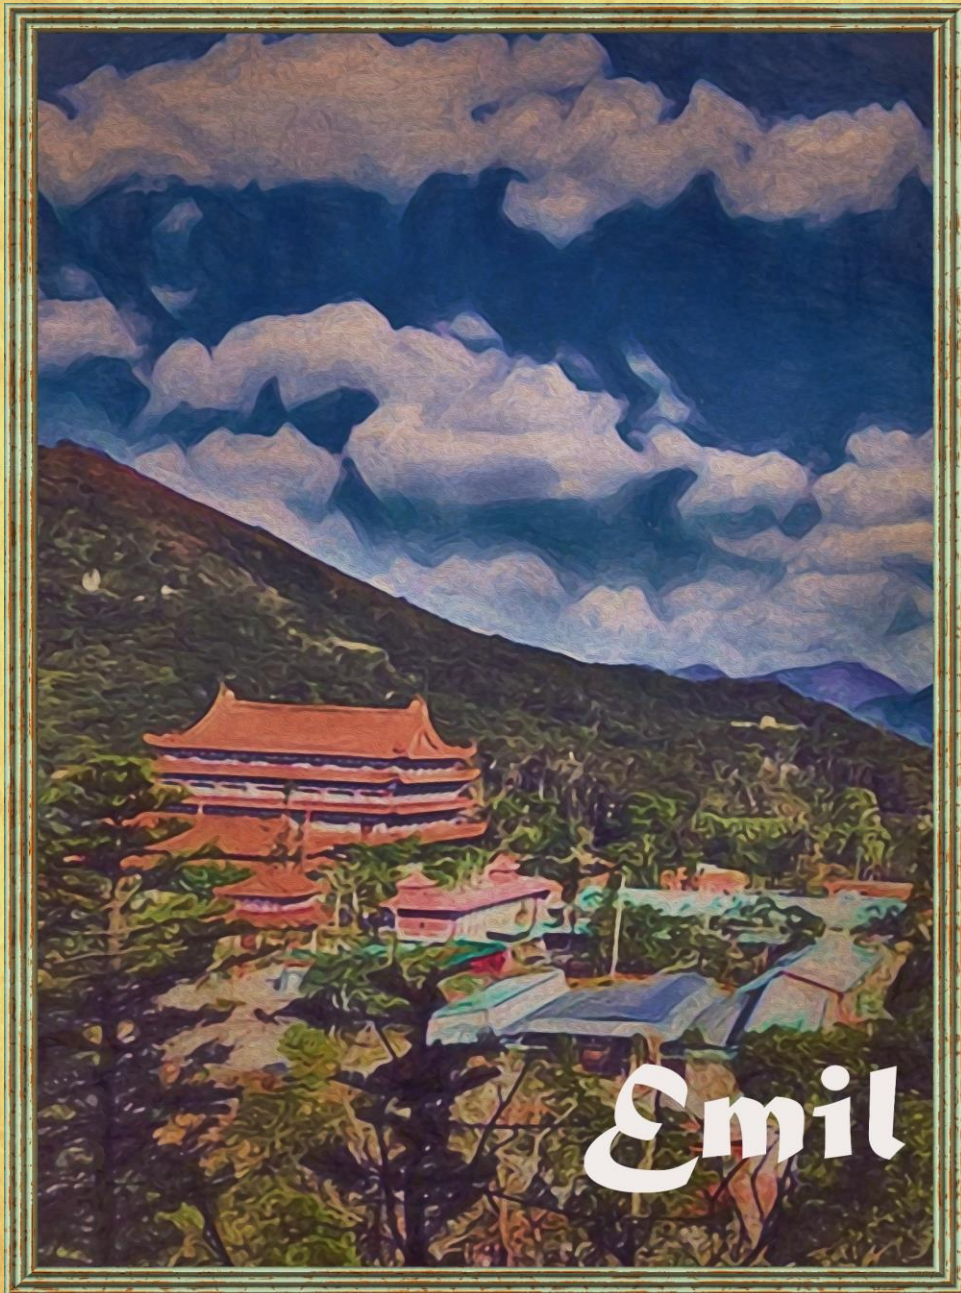

Go to Cambodia...go see all those once great stone statues and buildings that are being replaced with the cheapest grade of watered-down concrete – which is already breaking down in the yearly acid-laden rains that sweep out from the massive industrial districts and the massive coal power plants that light the great, the massive cities of South-East Asia.

the money is really spent – this true problem!

Granted venues like the Tian Tan big Buddha are not (yet) a World Heritage Site but, it also true that this place was only built to cash on tourism...

Why else would they build it into an amusement park with a sea of gift shops and valet parking garages?

Think that through, Campers?

Tian Tan has no cultural value as it wasn't built on a holy site or wasn't built by the bare hands of many or any special sub-grouping of Buddhism. There is not even a bit of historic value being that it wasn't built until the 1970s by a small group of real estate tycoons and land-use developers.

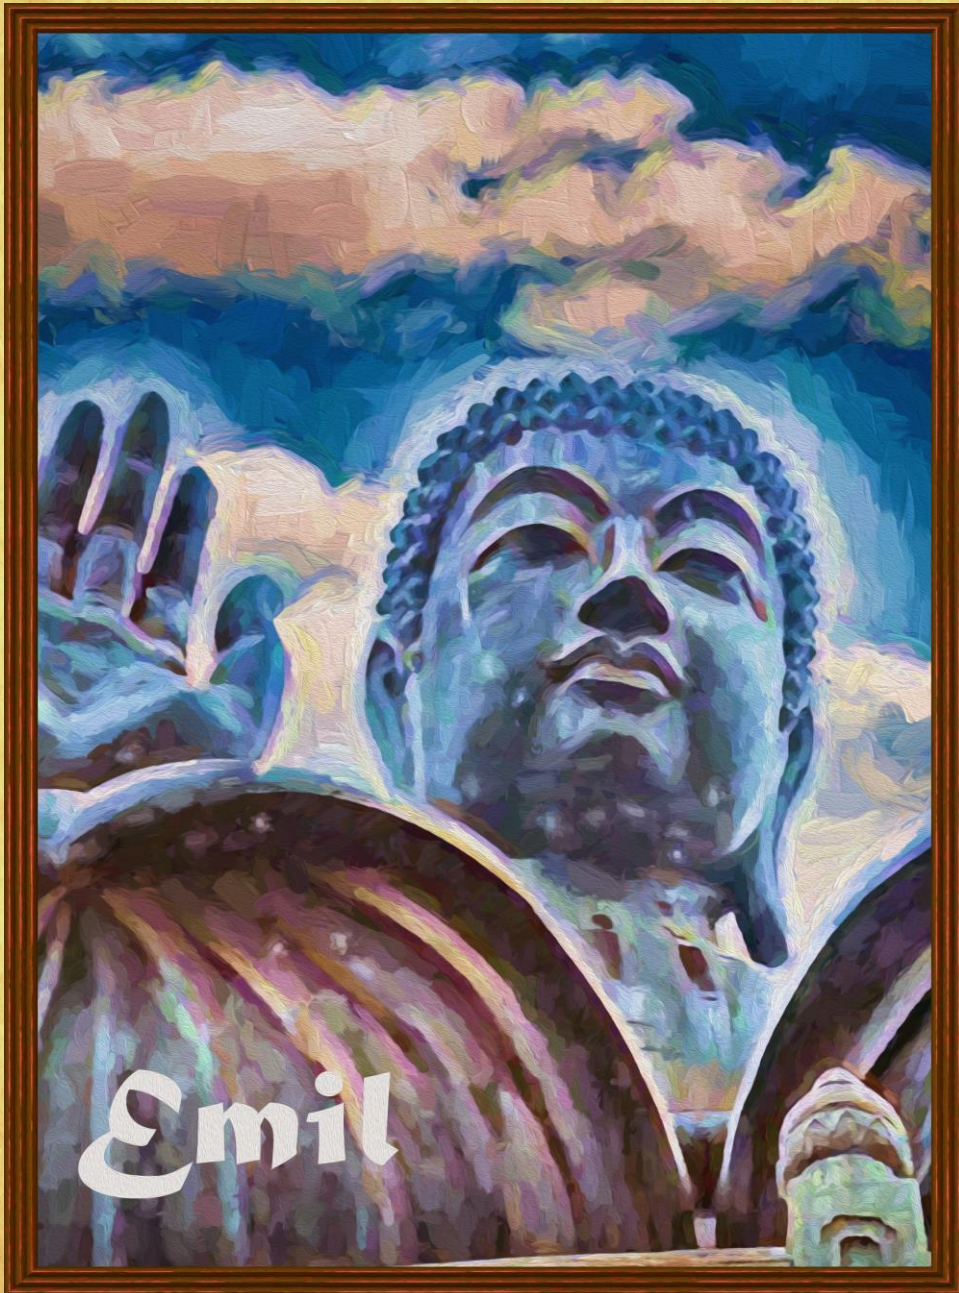

It was never meant to be anything more than a cut-rate version of the grand old tiger Balm Garden with the huge status with a cable car as its main draw.

Any conversation with any of the monastery's monk and they are quick to front load the conversation that the statue has no real tie to the monastery other than they are in a similar location.

I guess that I am not the first to approach them regarding a complaint or seeking a refund as there is not very much here!

I do not say this lightly but, after even a few minutes walking the site you can see the very Disney-like quality to the venue and its center core is the theme park and gift shops selling semi-real Tian Tan artifact souvenirs then, even radiating farther out into the “walk of wisdom” attraction; there are another wave of independent cafes and bars which did enlighten me to the fact that I should have eaten before I came as the other thing so Disney-like was the concession food prices.

Getting there required a deep level of patience and Buddhist mantra that we should accept what we can't control as the average wait (if your get there after the tourist buses show up) in the line to get to the cable car ticket booth was is far beyond long.

Again, to the very Disney-likeness here at Tian Tan, you are bombarded with visual imagery, nearby shopping

Seems from what I got by talking to various gift shop employees and an occasion assistant manager (never saw any owners as most of the gift shops are owned by absentee owners...some say, they are actually owned a secret corporation and even some students at Hong Kong University told me that it is all run for the total and only profit for and by the CCP) inside the main park boundaries and they bitterly complain that by the time the tourist rubes reach them; all of their money has been spent...although, none dare complain in writing or even above a whisper (rarely but, a occasional, unknown posting on social media) speak in fear of upsetting the

THE JOURNEY REMAINS YET INCOMPLETE...THANKS CCP!

Dateline: Hong Kong – Day Three...

Not to claim that I am or have ever been blessed the gift of foresight little-a-lone full-blown ESP but, for reasons that I can not even now begin to or for that matter, even elect to revisit my decision to post my portable drives back to Seine @ the main WWWG Corporate Center - which I have never done before without the standing threat from Seine to cancel my expenses.

Yesterday, after I returned from yet another morning at Tian Tan and given that I thought that I had the lay of the land...an insider's guide and if nothing else, I was capable of learning from my previous mis-steps; seems that I was proven wrong on all counts.

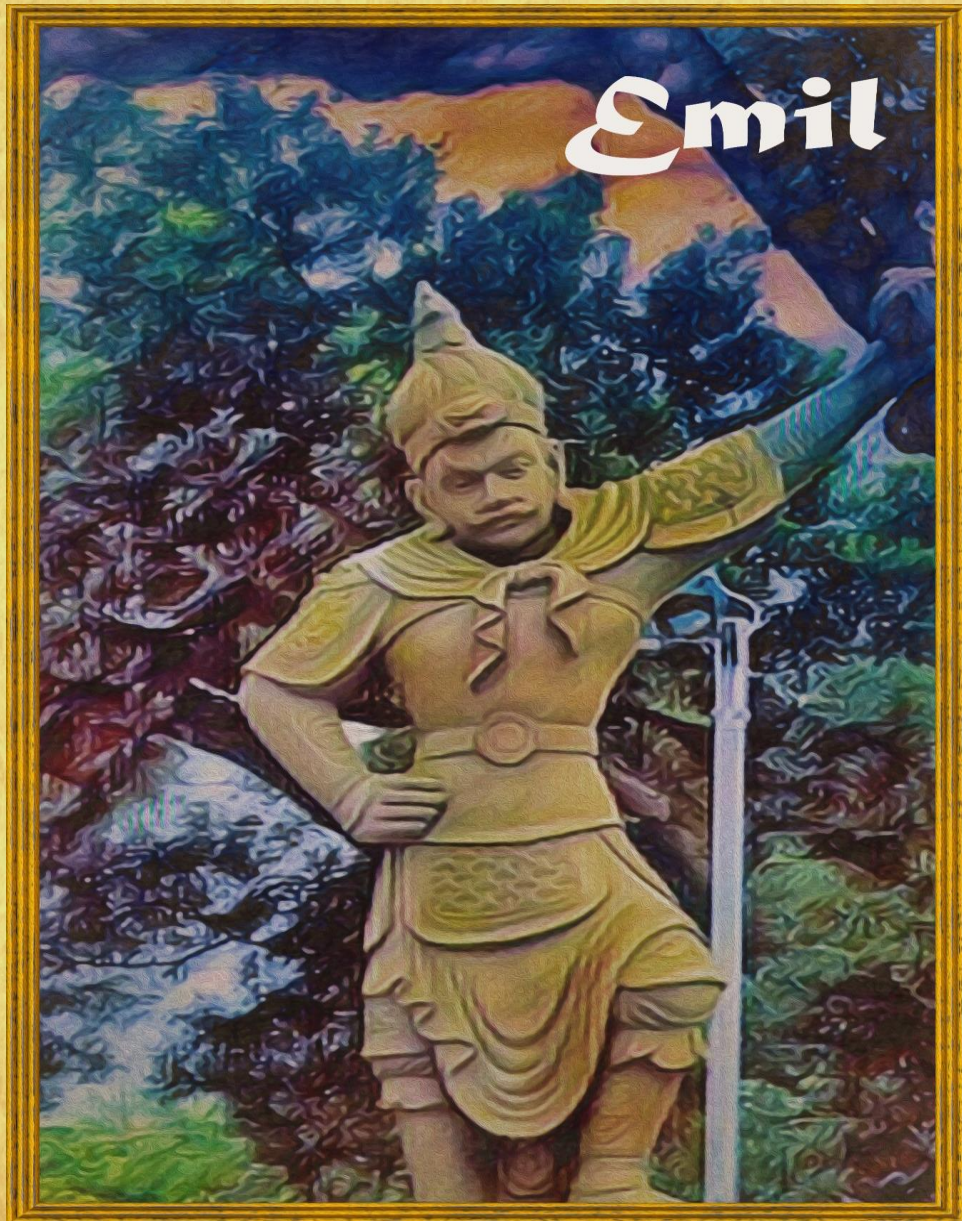

Strange?

Like I understood that you needed to pony up the primo fare for the "Crystal Box" to help avoid that massive multi-hour wait with all the masses of humanity assembled in a none social distancing mangle and maze but, seems that everyone from yesterday figured this out at about the same time and then, told all of their friends who were coming this morning – the end result was a three hour wait and the lost of over $300 Hong Kong Dollars...

Just can't catch a break and it truly went downhill from there with one near disaster after another especially after I started to ignore the numerous signage about "No Entrance" and "No Pictures...Not Ever!!!"

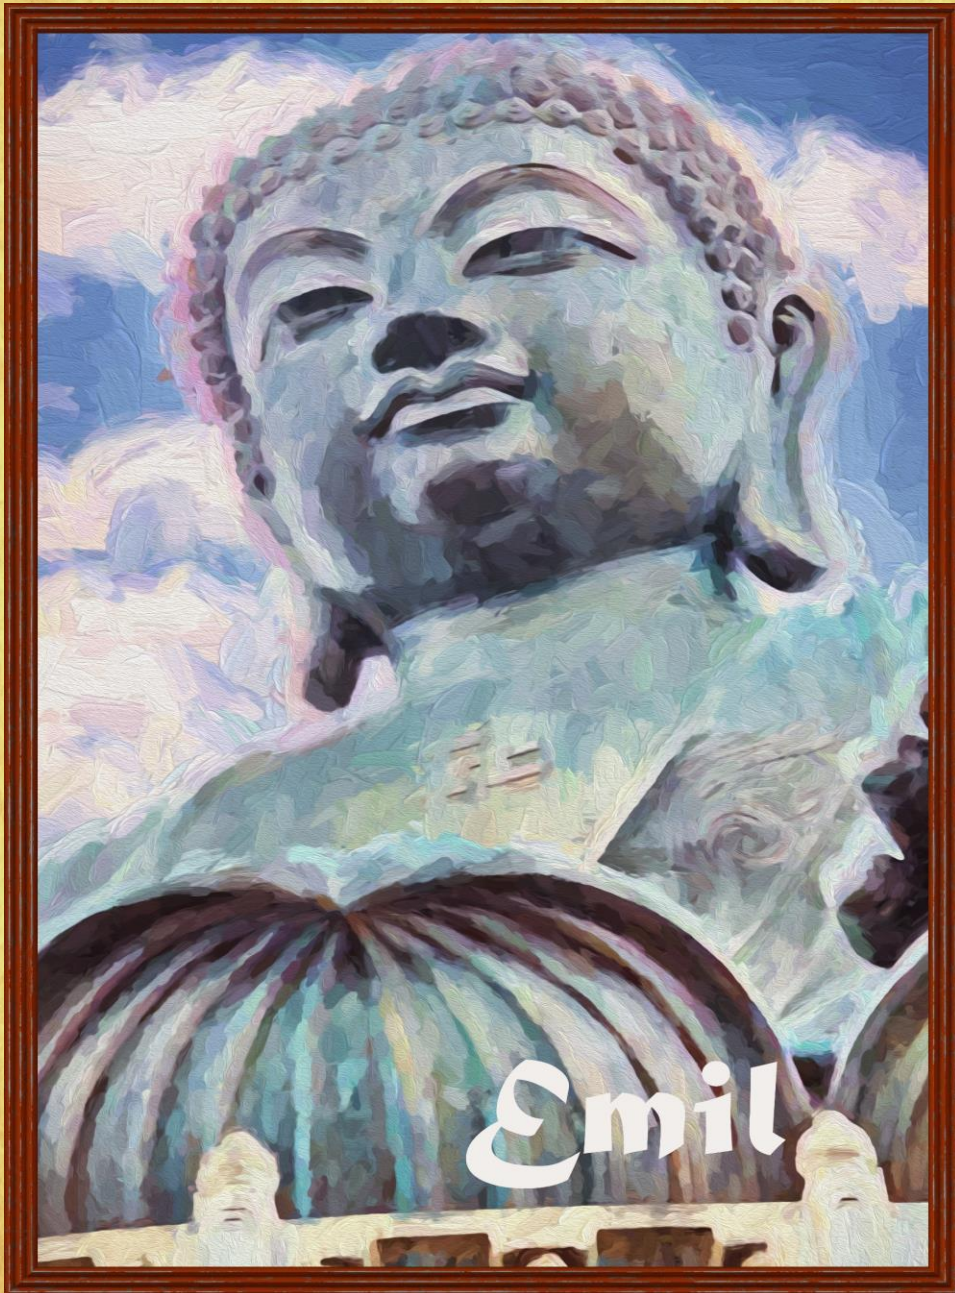

Being the experienced Hobo Tour Photographer that I tell everyone that I am (self-proclaimed but based upon ample and a rather large, sundry collection of interesting stories in this regard); I immediately snapped into my defensive mode of the "stupid tourist."

My "stupid tourist" is a beautiful routine that is a classic mix of a 1950's version of the Ugly American mixed with my on-spot impersonation of Forest Gump (sometimes...if the rent-a-cop is a hard nut...I will throw in a little Pee-Wee Herman for maximum effect) which tends to become so frustrating for your average, your normal run-of-the-mill, rent-a-cop; after only mere minutes they will be chasing me away many times with sticks (actual canes in Singapore, India and Nepal which the cops of each country uses for a very effect form of crowd control); other times, they run me off by throwing rocks and it is always accompanied with a usually very impressive, a multi-lingual expressing of words that the Singapore Publishing (Moral laws) will not let me repeat here.

I forgot several important facts that I had not seriously thought through about the fact that this place is run for the sole purpose of making a ton of money for the local chapter of the CCP and more importantly; that these rent-a-cops are the ones who didn't make the cut to work at the airport's immigration and still have a lot of anger issues over this rejection that they seem more than willing to use you to address these.

Most important to remember, the CCP is not a political organization with a political point-of-view that they believe in and aggressively promote like any Western Political Party.

They seem to care less than nothing for politics other than as a tool to keep the Hong Kong Denizens under their boot and prevent us Foreign Devils from ever figuring out what the real bottom line is. The real bottom line is MONEY...a lot of money and to the lifestyle and respect that this buys you here amongst the locals...Its true!

“How can you say all this about the CCP?”

As most Westerners do, you are missing the point by not understanding that they are all want-to-be gangsters and they run their party as if the was a New Jersey Docks Union or Chicago from the late 1920's.

What else you don't understand is that real gangsters like the Triads are very well feared but, they are also much respected as they take pride in the quality of the work that they do.

The people of Hong Kong do appreciate masters of their trade but, find the want-to-be gangsters of the CCP lacking – so they may fear them but, they have never respected them and the CCP Cadre feels this pain every day.

So...in the end, I was reduced and reverted to "Plan B" by pointing over to a group of seedy, western backpackers and yelled out to the rent-a-cops that they were secretly with the CIA and that they were here to meet the organizers of the Student Protests...

"I overheard them plotting when we were online waiting..."

Within seconds, I was yesterday's news as they called for backup, things moved on fast-forward speed and it seems that they were getting ready to lock down the whole of Tian Pan to deal with these Foreign Devil Spies (and CIA at that too!).

I instantly took the novel innovative to blend, to quickly melt away...back into the sea, the amassed horde of tourists while still working my way swiftly back to the "Crystal Box" and the freedom of the waiting streets of a very crowded Hong Kong...

That was my second day here on assignment in the barrios of Hong Kong and I have still not had a moment to get out to the used camera shops...

I am searching for a “mint” 8mm Sigma Lens for my Nikon.

I had this lens previously but in a moment of utter poverty and a need to eat; I sold it and as you can see, I still regret it...

That is my sole mission for today as I am not sure that I want to test the theory that all those CCP rent-a-cops can't tell one Foreign Devil from another or if that is just yet another CCP, Urban Myth.

Wish me luck...!

Need to talk to that old lady at the front counter as she seems to know where all the best places are...

Be back later, Campers!

{Within 30 minutes of finishing this draft and

WELL!

You all know the rest of the story...by heart?
Yes! I have been rather chatty about it, I do spend a lot of time rehashing, reliving those moments of being thrown to the ground and carted off to a yet an unknown detention...

Would you be any different, Bubba?}

About EMIL WEST

Welcome to all fans (all five or so of you) of Emil's doddles and we hope you will enjoy this new catalog of Emil's available art.

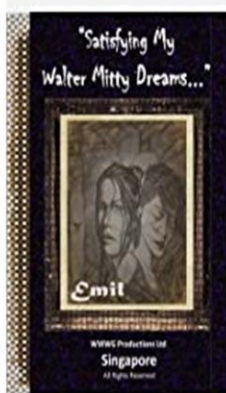

Emil had other ideas as to what the title should be and even though, they were clever and not without merit; Charles (WWWG's Financial Guru) won the final selection with the argument that we might create a new market for
